Somalis claim excessive force during raids

Dixon Road. Residents complain of 'reckless' police action during Project Traveller

Saeda Sidin Hersi woke to what sounded like gunshots.

When police arrived at the Dixon Road complex where she lives early on June 13, the woman told a news conference she was startled awake.

"It was like a loud, repetitive thunder. It reminded me of gunshots," the 65-year-old woman said, her story told through a written translation. "I was pinned against a wall, rubber handcuffs holding my hands behind my back and I was pushed onto the floor by what looked like a soldier."

Quoted

"The Somali community has further been stigmatized by the actions of some officers."

Mahad Yusuf, Midaynta Community Services

Hers was one of several stories shared on Tuesday at the conference held by the African Canadian Legal Clinic to condemn last week's raids as part of Project Traveller and allege police used excessive force and were culturally insensitive.

"After the raid, many Somali community members felt victimized, traumatized, as a result of (the) reckless manner in which the officers forcibly entered their homes," said Mahad Yusuf, executive director of Midaynta Community Services.

Hersi told Torstar News Service that as a Muslim woman with her legs exposed on the ground during the raid, she begged for an officer to cover her up. Then, she said with her heart pounding, she pleaded for water and medication for her high blood pressure.

"When I moved, he pushed me back down and kicked my face," she said.

A complaint has not been filed and none of the allegations have been proven.

Police spokesperson Mark Pugash said he has doubts about parts of the woman's story. He added many people in the community have come forward to thank police.

"The response ... has been incredibly positive," he said. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Sell off $162M in land, trustees told

The Toronto District School Board must commit to selling $162.2 million in school land in order for the province to free up money to pay for urgent school rebuilds and renovations.

A report before board trustees recommends that 11 properties be sold by 2015-16. Trustees will vote on the report on Wednesday. Most properties on the list are schools that closed years ago and are now rented out.

Spadina first to get new streetcars

TTC riders on Spadina and Bathurst will be the first to ride the new streetcars when they roll out next year. Kingston Road and Carlton riders, however, will be waiting until 2018 to 2019 for their turn.

A plan for the fleet of accessible, air-conditioned Bombardier streetcars shows that some routes will have less frequent service in the rush hours. In some cases riders will wait more than two minutes longer. But the less frequent service will be offset by bigger capacity and greater reliability, TTC spokesman Brad Ross said. A bunny thing happened on the way to city hall

Arjen Vanderwal composes a shot of a bronze rabbit bust on Tuesday at Nathan Phillips Square. Mayor Rob Ford unveiled Chinese artist Ai Weiwei's sculpture series Circle of Animals/Zodiac Heads, presented by the Art Gallery of Ontario. The 12 sculptures are animal heads depicting the Chinese zodiac. Vanderwal's birth year is represented by the rabbit. The installation will be in place until Sept. 22.

Let's try again: Wynne rues tensions with mayor

Ford video scandal. Premier says she hasn't reached out because it could be seen as interference

It's olive-branch time

"I had never intended to suggest that I was on the brink of taking some action. First of all, there's no action for me to take."

Premier Kathleen Wynne on the crack-video allegations surrounding Mayor Rob Ford

Premier Kathleen Wynne has not spoken to Mayor Rob Ford since the crack-video scandal erupted last month, and she is worried about strained relations between the province and the city.

"I feel so strongly that we need a good working relationship, so it does distress me if the relationship can be described as fraught," Wynne said on Tuesday at Queen's Park.

"I am not happy that there isn't a good — at least good public — working relationship. I would say that officials still work together very well. Still business gets done."

After reports of the video surfaced last month, Wynne said on May 30 that "the mayor needs to deal with his personal issues," which sparked anger at city hall.

"I think the premier should take care of the problems that she has at Queen's Park right now," Ford said that day.

Wynne said Tuesday that Ford and some overzealous headline writers misconstrued her words, but added she has pointedly not reached out to Ford since the controversy began.

"I guess my fear is it may be taken as interference at some level — I may be wrong."

Despite their "ideological" differences, Wynne said she has to work with the Progressive Conservative mayor.

Told Tuesday that Wynne said they had not spoken in a long time, and asked to describe their relationship, Ford said he and Wynne have "always had a cordial relationship.

"We might disagree on obviously the revenue new tools, the new taxes — that's something that we disagree on — but as a person she's very friendly," Ford said after helping to unveil a temporary display of statues by Chinese artist Ai Weiwei in Nathan Phillips Square.

Mayor's comments 'most unfortunate': Lawyer's statement

Credibility at issue. Ford's alleged attacker will 'vigorously' defend herself, lawyer says

The woman charged with assault for allegedly throwing a drink at Mayor Rob Ford intends to defend herself against the allegation, her lawyer said Tuesday.

Shannon Everett, 27, was charged following the alleged incident Saturday afternoon at the Taste of Little Italy event.

Defence lawyer Marie Henein released a statement Tuesday afternoon, saying it is "most unfortunate" that the mayor has commented on the situation outside of court.

"The mayor should allow Ms. Everett to have her day in court, where we will vigorously defend the charge against her and a court of law will have the full opportunity to assess Mayor Ford's credibility," Henein said.

Henein described her client as "a young yoga teacher and multimedia developer who has had no prior involvement with the police."

Everett works at the University of Ontario Institute of Technology in Oshawa as a multimedia developer in the teaching and learning centre.

Safety Code 6

Health risk panel chair failed to disclose conflict of interest: Journal

The chairman of a panel tasked with reviewing guidelines around the potential health risks of radiofrequency electromagnetic fields from wireless technology may be replaced for not declaring a conflict of interest.

On Tuesday, the Canadian Medical Association Journal published findings that University of Ottawa professor Daniel Krewski had been hired to work for Industry Canada in 2008, to help develop a "Communication Strategy for Radiofrequency Fields Risk."

Krewski is the chairman of a Royal Society of Canada panel tasked with conducting an independent expert assessment of Health Canada's standards around radiofrequency emissions, known as Safety Code 6. The panel, made up of eight experts in the field, will assess whether Health Canada guidelines for human exposure to RF emissions should be updated. The report is due out this fall.

But according to the Merx public tender document, the professor was paid $126,000 to help to create communication strategies to ease the health concerns of the public around Safety Code 6.

"The report will include suggestions as to how this understanding of public perception of risk can be exploited when communicating with the public on this issue," says the job requirement. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Taxpayer money. Senate cancels pep talk meant to ease tension over scandal

Two speakers hired by the Senate to help motivate senators and staff in the midst of a raging scandal over the abuse of taxpayers' money have had their event cancelled.

Communications consultant Barry McLoughlin and motivational speaker Marc-Andre Morel had been slated to talk about "the enduring value of the Senate and help bring a little perspective to the current situation," according to an invitation that went out on Tuesday morning.

But after a story by The Canadian Press publicized the event, a number of prominent senators blew a gasket over a lack of consultation in spending more taxpayer money. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cost unknown

It was not immediately clear how much the Senate contracted to pay for the speakers.

Spies and allies

Canada may have helped spy on G20

Leaked documents suggest Canada helped the U.S. and Britain spy on the London G20 summit four years ago.

Britain's Guardian newspaper says spies monitored the computers and intercepted the phone calls of foreign politicians and officials at two G20 meetings in London in 2009.

The Guardian published PowerPoint slides describing the operation, including one featuring the emblem of the Communications Security Establishment, Canada's electronic eavesdropping agency. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Syria talk at G8 went better than expected, says Harper

The Group of Eight stopped short of calling for the ouster of Syrian President Bashar Assad in its final statement on Tuesday but did call for a swift end to the bloody civil war. Prime Minister Stephen Harper had earlier named the group "G7 plus one" — the outlier being Russia, the only member to support Assad. Despite the lack of consensus, Harper said they produced a "genuine G8 statement." ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Just a few bad apples? Montreal loses 2nd mayor to corruption accusations

Montreal has had its second scandal-provoked mayoral resignation in less than a year, with an arrest and criminal charges leading to the departure Tuesday of its interim city-hall boss.

Replacement mayor Michael Applebaum stepped down a day after he was slapped with 14 criminal charges, including fraud, conspiracy, breach of trust and corruption in municipal affairs.

Applebaum said he's innocent of the charges.

"I hope you understand that I will put my energy into my defence and my family," Applebaum said in a two-minute statement at city hall.

"This is why I am resigning as mayor of Montreal. It is the responsible thing to do."

He said he hoped to someday regain Montrealers' trust. He conceded that, in the meantime, it would have been implausible to try continuing as mayor.

Applebaum spent much of his statement combating the notion that he had deceived Montrealers. Seven months after he took office on a promise to fight corruption, Applebaum insisted he had never participated in illegal schemes and said he had achieved successes in cleaning up city hall.

The city will soon have yet another mayor. A vote at city council is expected next week to pick the person who will hold office until the November election. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Northern Ireland. EU slams Canada for holding up free-trade negotiations

Canada has publicly been called on the carpet by the European Union for holding up free-trade talks. EU trade spokesman John Clancy took the unusual step Tuesday of criticizing Canada as the G8 summit in Northern Ireland came to a close.

"We are very close to an agreement," Clancy said in a statement. "The EU has shown pragmatism and flexibility and is ready to take the last steps to achieve a political breakthrough in the negotiations.

"We have been awaiting a similar message from Canada since the trade and agriculture ministers met in Ottawa in early February."

Cranking up the pressure on Canadian negotiators is Monday's announcement that the EU and the United States are starting their own free-trade talks. THE CANADIAN PRESS

What's the beef?

- Among the issues believed to be stalling the talks is duty-free access to European markets for Canadian beef.
- Ireland and France, two major beef producers, are believed to have concerns about the amount of Canadian beef allowed into Europe. Canada is said to have balked at the export limit proposed by the Europeans.

Should she be allowed into the EU duty-free? THE CANADIAN PRESS

Research. Team develops 'sharp-shooter' drug aimed at several cancers

A team of Canadian and U.S. researchers has developed a new "sharp-shooter" drug they hope may be a breakthrough in treating several types of aggressive cancer.

The drug, known for now as CFI-400945, is a new class of cancer agent that targets an enzyme involved in some malignancies, among them some types of breast cancer and ovarian, colorectal, pancreatic and prostate cancers.

In tests on specially bred lab mice with human breast and ovarian cancers, CFI-400945 "responded spectacularly," significantly shrinking the tumours, said co-principal investigator Dr. Tak Mak of Princess Margaret Cancer Centre.

But the world-renowned researcher cautioned these results occurred in mice — and human cancers can be far more complex.

"To find a cure is our shared dream; our nightmare is that it is not yet within our reach," Mak told a packed news conference at the Toronto hospital Tuesday. "Cure is not a word we like to use lightly and we refuse to use it recklessly or promise you something we cannot deliver."

Still, he and principal collaborator Dr. Dennis Slamon of the University of California at Los Angeles, who developed the blockbuster breast cancer medication Herceptin, are excited about the promise of the new drug that's taken a decade to develop. THE CANADIAN PRESS

HERE'S A TIP: DON'T EXPECT ONE?

JUST SAYIN'

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

OK, I have a cat here. And I'm going to place it gently among the pigeons, then back away:

Should tipping be banned?

A popular high-end New York restaurant called Sushi Yasuda thinks so, and has done exactly that. Servers are forced to live on their salaries. They also get, like, benefits.

The restaurant's owner says the tipping ban ends the bile-inducing requirement to calculate the tip at the end of the meal, recapturing the serenity of fine Japanese dining.

Just so, grasshopper.

This isn't a trend exactly, but there's also a bit of an outbreak in Chicago where in some restaurants, you pay for the meal before you even begin. Careful not to choke on the appetizer.

Right now, there are overworked and underpaid servers everywhere going WTF? This subject is not even open to negotiation.

Then, just as likely, there are customers who are wondering when the practice of tipping became an obligation under the Geneva Convention, or wherever they issue those must-be-obeyed decrees.

There's even less room to weasel out of tipping these days. Now, the server hovers (anxious, vigilant) over your shoulder as you pay the bill on that portable Wi-Fi Visa machine with its handy tip percentage buttons. I don't know about you, but unless the waiter flambés my dinner companion, I dutifully press the 20 per cent button.

And if he/she does toast my guest, I only leave 15 per cent. You have to take a stand somewhere.

Back in the old days, if you were abandoned altogether somewhere between courses, you could slide a penny under your dish and make your getaway, smug in the knowledge that you failed to put some kid through drama school. But there's no penny button on that infernal machine.

At the New York sushi restaurant, people were so brainwashed that they tried to write in a tip on the bill, even though there was no place to accommodate one. They just didn't get it, until the owners started red-circling the explanation about the tipping ban. Then they got it, and unless they were married to the server, they liked it.

I don't know about a ban, but it might not be a bad idea to restore the idea of the tip as an expression of appreciation for good service. Don't ban tipping; ban the obligation to tip.

Of course, now I've done it. I'll have to eat at home until the heat dies down. Maybe, just to be safe, I'll hire a food taster. Problem is, I'll have to leave a generous tip. Nobody wants an unhappy food taster.

Hi sea lion, nice to meat you

PABLO CERSOSIMO/SOLENT

Pup's close call with killer whale

This fortunate sea lion escaped the jaws of death by a few centimetres after a pod of killer whales (orca) risked beaching themselves while in pursuit of their prey.

The South American sea lion pup and others encountered the predatory mammals as they cruised along the coast of Valdes Peninsula in Argentina. METRO

Q and A

Near-death life lesson

PABLO CERSOSIMO
Professional photographer and safari guide, 44, from Buenos Aires, Argentina

It looks like this sea lion is doomed...

This sea lion survived but others were not so fortunate. But in truth, pups need a couple of these bad experiences to learn that orcas are predators and that they will be part of their menu. When pups are one month old, they start venturing out into the water and at that stage they don't know what an orca is. They don't associate these whales with danger and often stay in the water when the predators show up. It's a life lesson for the pup.

In these hunter-versus-the-hunted scenarios, do you sympathize with one critter over another?

No, I sympathize with both. The orca is one of my favourite animals — it's smart, intelligent and with many respects similar to humans. And I admire the sea lions for their ability to survive against this magnificent predator.

The value of a good night's sleep has been drilled in our heads since bedtime was at sunset — but knowing to go to bed early is different than falling asleep early. For those who need more than sheep counting, gentle ocean sounds or three fingers of Scotch to help catch some zzzz's, technology is on your side. Pull down the blackout blinds, fluff the pillows and get in bed ... with your phone.

Sleep Time

Pictured at right, this app tracks the time you go to bed, length of deep and light sleep, and eases you into the day with a soothing crescendo alarm that goes off when you're in the lightest phase of sleep. iOS and Android.

Sleep Cycle

Similar to Sleep Time, but for the $0.99 charge you get a "personal notes" section to track your pre-sleep habits (did a 10-kilometre run before bed, ate spicy food for dinner, had a few drinks, etc., etc.). Plus, the app runs in the background so you can cruise Facebook in bed without remembering to reset the alarm. iOS only.

SleepBot

Not only does this free app track your sleep, it also records the noises you make in your sleep (and therefore proving once and for all that you don't snore). Android only.

Brainless entertainment has zombies taking over the world

World War Z.
Filmmakers continue to capitalize by making corpses cool for the next generation of little guys and ghouls, who, in turn, eat it up

IN FOCUS
Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

Brad Pitt stars in World War Z but has no idea what makes zombies so appealing to a new movie-going generation. HANDOUT

Zombies are the most recent and most unlikely pop culture heroes.

On TV, the recent Walking Dead finale drew almost 13 million viewers.

At the movies the zom com Warm Bodies made still hearts beat again and outdoor recreation retailer REI even bandwagon jumped with their 13 Essential Tools for Surviving a Zombie Outbreak campaign.

This weekend Brad Pitt battles the undead in World War Z, an action thriller set against the backdrop of a worldwide zombie apocalypse.

The movie has the highest ratio of zombies to humans of any film this year, but don't ask its star why these cannibalistic cadavers are so trendy.

"As for why zombies are so popular," said Pitt, "I really have no idea."

Pitt may not be able to out his finger on it, but academics suggest a variety of reasons. Audiences are interested in zombies in times of crisis, when we feel disempowered, says one, while another writer proposes that they offer something more primal — that the zombies represent an example of control over death.

Whatever the reason, filmmakers have been capitalizing on these cool corpses for years. Some, like Night of the Living Dead and Shaun of the Dead are classics, others, like the stranger-than-usual Zombie Honeymoon, aren't.

The grand-ghoul of all weird zombie movies is 1968's Astro Zombies. Starring horror legend John Carradine and cult star Tura Satana, the story of superhuman monsters on a killing spree has inspired two sequels and a song of the same name by the Misfits.

The mockumentary American Zombie's tag line is, "We're Here. We're Dead. Get Used to It!"

Documenting the everyday "lives" of a community of zombies in California, it's a fake undead propaganda film that echoes the struggles of many minorities who have had to fight for human rights.

Fido, a Canadian film starring Billy Connolly and Carrie-Anne Moss, is set in a world where humans won the zombie war and, as victors, have made the undead their domestic servants. Funny rather than scary, this one is worth a look to see the usually motor mouthed Connolly in a fun, shambling and wordless performance.

Strangest of all the non-mainstream zombie movies? Poultrygeist: Night of the Chicken Dead, a movie musical about a fast food chain called American Chicken Bunker whose meals turn diners into chicken zombies. Gross, gory and gratuitous, badmovienight.com called it "one of the sickest, most depraved movies I've ever seen."

If you want to be cool like mommy, don't kiss mommy in public

Britney Spears admits she's starting to feel the sting of her kids getting older, particularly when it comes to her public displays of affection.

"My sons are six and seven, so they're just now getting to the stage of where you can't kiss Mommy in front of your friends and all that kind of stuff," she tells Ryan Seacrest during a call into his radio show.

"They're getting what's cool and what's not."

Angelina Jolie comes under fire for health decisions

While Angelina Jolie has received near-universal praise for her decision to undergo a voluntary double mastectomy to prevent developing breast cancer, at least one person isn't impressed.

Cancer survivor Melissa Etheridge says that she has the same faulty gene Jolie has that makes cancer more likely, and she doesn't recommend the course the Oscar-winner took.

"I wouldn't call it a brave choice," she tells the Washington Blade.

"I think actually it's the most fearful choice you can make when confronting anything with cancer."

Ben Affleck

Affleck finding that three's company

While Ben Affleck might have suggested he and Jennifer Garner were up for adding to their family following the arrival of their third child last year, he's apparently changed his tune.

"That's not going to happen," he tells Extra when asked about having a fourth child.

"We're in a really good place. Three is good. That's enough."

Finding free things in one of the world's most expensive cities may sound impossible. Surprisingly, Tokyo offers a wide range of museums, parks, historical sites and cultural activities for free — good news for budget travellers who want to see a lot and still enjoy expensive sushi.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

5 Free things to do in Tokyo

Old and new

Meiji Jingu Shrine is a piece of old Tokyo not to be missed. Boasting the nation's largest wooden "torii" gate, the shrine was built more than 90 years ago to commemorate Emperor Meiji, who reigned as Japan opened to the rest of the world after centuries of isolation. A short walk from the serenity takes you to Harajuku and Omotesando, a Mecca of latest fashion and culture, the district of "cool" new Japan. Walk down the Takeshita street packed with young people looking for the latest "kawaii" (cute) trends.

Japan's legislative home

Parliament, or the National Diet, as it is officially known, stands on a site once occupied by feudal lords and is now home to Japan's legislative headquarters. Completed in 1936, the building with a landmark pyramid-shaped dome houses the two chambers — the more powerful House of Representatives (Lower House) and the House of Councilors (Upper House) — under the Japanese parliamentary system. The Upper House provides a free hour-long tour when the house is not in session.

Tsukiji fish market

Sprawling Tsukiji fish market — the world's biggest — is where those beautiful slices of tuna on your sushi come from. Want to witness the famous tuna auctions? Then get up early and be there by 5 a.m. to queue up for the first 120 viewing slots. If that's too early, you can still spend hours roaming a maze of narrow alley ways, but watch out for the motorized carts whizzing around with ice troughs filled with fish.

Walk to Odaiba Beach

Need to burn calories after eating all the delicious local food, but you're too busy sightseeing? Here is a perfect plan — a scenic walk over the Rainbow Bridge to the reclaimed island of Odaiba out in the Tokyo Bay for a picnic, sunbathing on a man-made beach, or even a jog. The walk is just more than 1.7 kilometres including the 918-metre-long single-span suspension bridge and takes less than an hour one way.

Experience a (fake) quake

Japan is one of the most earthquake-prone countries in the world. This public facility, the Ikebukuro Disaster Prevention Center, run by the Tokyo Fire Department, offers a uniquely Japanese experience that can be educational, a bit scary, but also fun. Visitors can experience a temblor — as violent as the March 2011 disaster that struck northern Japan — in a quake simulator built in a living room set.

Land of the winding trail, home of beauty

Fredericton. New Brunswick's capital city is heaven for cyclists, walkers and runners

Whether it's for the scenery, the exercise or just getting around, an impressive trail system in New Brunswick's capital city is getting lots of use by residents and visitors alike.

Fredericton has more than 88 kilometres of trails, ranging from wide paved routes to footpaths through parks and woodland.

"We are very fortunate here in this area," said Barbara Trenholm of Fredericton. "They've done a nice job on the trails and they're well used."

In fact, more than 105,000 people use the city's trail system each summer.

Mike Glynn, trail co-ordinator for the city, said the trails are used by walkers and joggers, but also by cyclists and skateboarders.

He said efforts have been made in recent years to pave the main routes. "We have about 12.6 kilometres of asphalt trail in the city and we're looking to add another 2.6 kilometres this year," Glynn said.

Fredericton is in central New Brunswick and the city straddles the St. John River. The city is picturesque with the river, parks, tree-lined streets and large old homes.

Glynn said the main trails provide a lot of scenic views.

"You're looking at the St. John River, which is beautiful with lots of boats on the river," he said. "Along the south side there are lots of trees and greenery, plus the art gallery and the river, so it's a very peaceful location."

The trails also run by a number of hotels, some of which offer bike rentals, making the trail system a great way to get out and explore the city.

Maria Devries of Ottawa was taking advantage of a hot, sunny day to bike the trail along the south side of the river.

"I think it is wonderful," she said. "I ride my bike along the Ottawa River, so it is comparable to the same beauty here."

Get lost in the Portugal. Moorish castles, austere convents and spectacular ocean views — what more could you want?

With sunshine bathing its multicoloured facades against a backdrop of deep blue sky, the Pena Palace in Sintra, Portugal, is like a castle seen through a kaleidoscope.

A jumble of bright yellow domes, red towers, blue tiles, a drawbridge and a half-man, half-fish sculpture holding up a window, the Pena Palace is lauded as the finest example of Portuguese romanticism, an eclectic mix that borrows style notes from — among others — the Moors, German gothic revival and the local manueline architecture.

Fernando II, husband of Portuguese Queen Maria II, had the palace built in the 1840s around the remains of a derelict monastery. Now tourists can wander through its ornate rooms and oversized kitchens as well as its sprawling gardens, featuring plants brought back from around the world and ponds where carp and black swans drift languidly around crenelated duck houses.

And Pena is far from the only spectacular palace in Sintra, long a playground of royalty and the ostentatiously wealthy. The town's altitude and shady forests have historically provided welcome relief from sweltering summer temperatures of the Portuguese capital, Lisbon, which is now only a half-hour's drive away.

Bang in the middle of the old town is the National Palace with its distinctive conical chimneys. A couple of kilometres into the lushly forested hills is the Palace of Monserrate — once visited by British poet Lord Byron — surrounded by manicured gardens and what is billed as the first lawn planted in Portugal.

And if your eyes tire of all the palatial pomp, you can retire for a morning to the cool confines of a 16th century monastery, where Franciscan friars lived in extreme austerity, providing a stark contrast to Sintra's explosion of architectural excesses.

Overlooking it all are the well-preserved remains of an eighth century Moorish fort, whose restored ramparts cling to a hilltop above Sintra and offer spectacular views of the Atlantic Ocean and the Pena Palace on an adjacent hill.

The wealth of historic buildings led UNESCO to inscribe the entire Sintra "Cultural Landscape" on its World Heritage List in 1995, saying its "structures harmonize indigenous flora with a refined and cultivated landscape created by man as a result of literary and artistic influences."

Nowhere can that be better seen than in the grounds of the Palace of Monserrate, a summer residence for 19th century British textile millionaire Francis Cook, whose gardens include a folly of a ruined chapel with an Australian banyan tree draped over its walls, a man-made waterfall, a valley full of tree ferns from Australia and New Zealand, cacti from Mexico and a Chinese mourning cypress in the middle of the steeply sloping lawn.

The palace itself is no less spectacular, with three dome-topped towers connected by a corridor full of ornately carved arches and columns. It is not hard to imagine Lord Byron wandering from a piano recital in the northern tower's music room to the nearby billiards room before strolling past panels of Indian alabaster carved in Mogul style to the library, where he could pen a verse amid the dark walnut bookshelves.

All of the buildings around Sintra are open to the paying public and easily accessible, offering a glimpse back in time to the days when Portugal was a wealthy seafaring nation ruled by a monarchy with a penchant for palaces.

Walking from ornate bedrooms to tiled bathrooms of the palaces and gazing at their huge kitchens gives an idea of the sumptuous lives of the Portuguese royals and their guests and it is easy to feel why they flocked here from Lisbon in the summer when you stroll through the shaded gardens, catching glimpses of the ocean and surrounding hills.

But in a country currently buckling under European Union-mandated budgetary austerity measures, the pared-back simplicity of the Moorish castle and the Capuchos Convent also leave lasting impressions. The castle was built by Moors in the ninth and 10th centuries, gradually fell into disrepair and was restored in the 19th century by none other than Fernando II, the queen's consort responsible for the neighbouring Pena Palace.

A short drive into the hills, austerity is taken to its extremes at the Franciscan monastery known as the Convent of the Holy Cross or the Capuchos Convent, built in 1560 and inhabited until 1834. Here, the only nods toward any kind of decoration are the 18th century azulejo tiles in its Chapel of the Passion of the Christ. Elsewhere, doors to dormitory rooms are built deliberately small so that monks have to bow in humility just to get into the cramped quarters, and doors and shutters are lined with cork harvested from trees in the surrounding forest.

Sitting on the steps of the monks' grain store in the shadow of a leaning cork oak looking at the simple stone buildings that blend into the woods, Sintra and its palaces seem a world away.

Don't dread the layover — embrace it! ISTOCK

Don't languish on your layover

ON THE MOVE
Loren Christie
life@metronews.ca

With the busy summer holiday season upon us, Canadians know that travel delays and long airport layovers can be part of the package. So how do you make the most of that time?

Spend as little time as possible in a line. Check in before arriving at the airport and avoid baggage drop-off lines by bringing only a carry-on piece of luggage. Properly prepare for your security screening. Wear shoes that easily slip off and on, know which sharp objects will literally "not fly" and don't bring liquids more than 100 ml in size.

Scope out potential distractions — eating options, shopping, spa services or even a movie theatre, in advance. Planning out an itinerary for your layover will ensure the time passes quickly. To assist in your search, load up the Gate Guru app on your iPad or iPhone. It lists all the businesses near each gate along with user reviews, pictures and maps from airports around the world, including Toronto, Calgary and Halifax.

If you are not part of an airline loyalty program that provides you access to the oasis that is an airport lounge, consider buying your way in. Plaza Premium Lounges located in Toronto, Edmonton and Vancouver are pay-as-you-go lounges that are not affiliated with a particular airline or class of fare. Enjoy meals, computer access and a place to escape the crowds. Or consider making a pit stop at a hotel connected to your airport terminal. They often offer day-use packages for their gym and spa facilities.

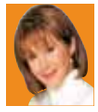
Raw fish, it isn't just for sushi



ROSE REISMAN

Seviche is a seafood dish popular in the coastal regions of the Americas, especially Central and South America.

The dish is typically made from fresh raw fish marinated in citrus juice. Buy the freshest fish possible from a reputable fish store. You can also use white fish such as snapper, tilapia and halibut.

1. In bowl, place scallops, squid, onion, red pepper, tomato, garlic, lime juice, cilantro and oil; stir to combine.

2. Cover and refrigerate for 2 hours to marinate, stirring occasionally. Serve over lettuce-lined plates.

MEDICINES COME IN ALL SHAPES AND SIZES
SO DO OUR VOLUNTEERS

Developing new medicines and improving existing ones depends on clinical trials. But these controlled clinical research studies need volunteers. That's why we're looking for healthy adults who:

- Are aged 18 to 55
- Have recreational drug experience with cocaine and/or stimulants (e.g., methamphetamine, methylphenidate and/or MDMA)

If you are eligible, you'll attend one screening visit, one 4-day qualification visit, six 5-day treatment visits and one follow-up visit.

Eligible subjects will receive up to $9,055 in financial compensation for participation in this clinical trial.

Give 'em your best by getting some rest

You don't always lose when you snooze.
Five tips for getting enough sleep as a new graduate

MEGHAN GREAVES
TalentEgg.ca

There are many changes that come along with transitioning from the student world to the work world. One of the biggest changes that new grads face is in their schedule.

Getting enough sleep is important for everyone, but especially important for new grads as the change in routine tends to be a big one. Gone are the days where you could grab a couple extra minutes (or hours in some cases…) of sleep as you needed.

The side effects of sleep deprivation are scary, so we have the tips you need to make getting enough sleep simple.

Create a routine

The first step in ensuring that you get enough sleep is setting a routine — and sticking to it. To do this, determine what time you have to wake up and count seven to nine hours back from there — that's your bedtime. For example, if you need to wake up at 6:30 am, you'll need to go to bed between 9:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. depending on how much rest your body needs.

Wind down

Sadly, our minds don't shut off the second we put our head on the pillow.

- Our bodies take time to relax enough to fall asleep.
- Winding down before you go to bed can be anything that relaxes you; reading a book, organizing your things for the next day, going for a walk, stretching, talking with your roommate.
- Whatever makes you feel less anxious — do it. This will help you be ready for a good night's sleep.

In the jungle, the concrete jungle, the worker sleeps tonight. ISTOCK

Turn off electronics

Set a curfew for your electronics. Researchers have found that there might be a correlation between using electronics before bed and sleep quality. In order to fall asleep, our body needs time to wind down and it can't do that right after looking at the bright lights of a television, computer or smartphone. To make sure that your sleep isn't being hampered by your electronics, try to stay away from using them an hour or two before you hit the pillow.

Stay away from sugar and caffeine

There's nothing like a sweet treat or warm drink before bed, but try to stay away from anything with high sugar or caffeine levels as they can keep you awake for hours after you drink them.

Say no

You might not be on the same schedule as your friends and family, but you don't need to be sleep deprived because of it. If your friends' plans are tiring and affecting your work ethic, don't be afraid to pass every once in a while. This doesn't mean that you should become a hermit, but be aware of when you need to put your sleep first and socializing second.

When heading off into the "real-world" as a new grad, you may find it difficult to get everything you want done.

One task that often gets pushed aside is hitting the gym on a regular basis. For most, working out directly before or after work isn't appealing. Who truly wants to wake up an hour early or get home an hour late? Not me.

So, if you're having trouble fitting your work-outs before and after work, when can you? At lunch! For most full-time employees, you'll have an hour-long lunch, which gives you just enough time to get a quick work-out in.

Stay energized

When working out on your lunch break, it's crucial to hydrate and get the proper nutrients.

- Firstly, working out on an empty stomach isn't healthy. Secondly, you don't want work to be affected.
- Have a small snack (like yogurt, veggies and hummus, apple slices, etc.) before your workout and eat your lunch after your workout to keep you on your A-game.

Get everything in order

"I'd like a half hour workout with a side of shower time and spinach salad please!" — sounds like a little much right? It is possible though with a bit of organization. To do so, pack your work clothes, gym gear and home-made lunch with you all in one bag so it's ready to go. This will make it easy for you to go from one thing to the next smoothly.

Intensity, intensity, intensity

Sometimes less is more! It's completely possible to have a short, intense workout if you plan your workouts before hand. For example; if you're going to the gym three times a week on your lunch break, plan three different workouts for you to rotate through each day you go (on your phone, cue cards, etc). This will allow you to make the most of your gym time by having a game plan all while knowing that you're getting everything in that you need to.

Jays blast Rockies for 7th straight win

Edwin Encarnacion had a home run and three RBIs to back pitcher Esmil Rogers's strong outing against his former club and the Toronto Blue Jays won their seventh straight with an 8-3 interleague victory over the Colorado Rockies on Tuesday night.

The Jays (34-36) are rolling, having won 11 of their last 14 games since June 2 and outscoring their opponents 73-38 in that span.

Infielder Maicer Izturis and catcher J.P. Arencibia also went deep for Toronto, which hasn't won seven straight since Aug. 30 to Sept. 9, 2008.

Rogers (3-2) pitched 6 2/3 innings while giving up three runs — two earned — and four hits in his fourth start of the year.

NBA finals. Veteran's clutch 3-ball and James' big fourth quarter force Game 7

The Heat's LeBron James blocks a shot by Tim Duncan of the Spurs during Game 6 of the NBA finals on Tuesday in Miami. The Heat won 103-100 to force Game 7. KEVIN C. COX/GETTY IMAGES

LeBron James shrugged off a poor start to get 32 points, 11 assists and 10 rebounds, Ray Allen hit a three-pointer with 5.2 seconds to play to force overtime and the Miami Heat staved off elimination with a 103-100 victory over the San Antonio Spurs in Game 6 of the NBA finals on Tuesday night.

James missed nine of his first 12 shots, but scored 16 points in the fourth to rally the Heat from a 10-point deficit. The Heat trailed 94-89 with 28 seconds to play, but James hit a three-pointer with 20 seconds to go and Allen drilled another to tie it.

James' layup with 1:43 to play in overtime gave the Heat a 101-100 lead, and Allen added two free throws to force Game 7, which is on Thursday night in Miami. The Spurs had one final chance down 103-100, but Chris Bosh blocked Danny Green's three-point attempt from the corner as time expired.

Tim Duncan had 30 points and 17 rebounds in a performance straight out 2003. But he was scoreless in the fourth and overtime and the Spurs squandered a golden opportunity to close out the series and win their fifth championship.

Mario Chalmers scored 20 points, Bosh had 10 points and 11 rebounds and Shane Battier hit three three-pointers for the Heat, who trailed 75-65 after three quarters.

James eschewed his trademark headband in the fourth quarter, then spearheaded the ferocious comeback. He scored six straight points for the Heat, then fed Chris Andersen, who made a free throw to pull the Heat within two at 82-80 with seven minutes to play.

James then blocked a layup by Duncan and scored on the other end to tie it and Allen's reverse layup gave the Heat an 84-82 lead with six minutes to go.

The Heat led 89-86, but Tony Parker hit a step-back three and a layup to take back the lead.

Game 6

Heat	Spurs

After Allen's big shot from the corner sent the game into overtime, James scored on a layup for a 101-100 lead with a minute to go. The Spurs had a chance to take the lead in the closing seconds, but Manu Ginobili's drive was thwarted and Allen hit two free throws.

Bosh blocked Danny Green's 3-pointer at the buzzer, and the defending champs lived to fight another day.

Parker finished with 19 points on 6-for-23 shooting and eight assists and Kawhi Leonard had 22 points and 11 rebounds for San Antonio. Green, who broke the NBA finals record for 3-pointers, had just three points on 1-for-7 shooting. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Review. OK, no more Mr. Nice Guy; Toyota's luxury brand is here to take down the big guns

wheelbasemedia.com

2014 Lexus IS

- Type. Four-door, rear- /all-wheel-drive entry-luxury compact sedan
- Engines (hp). 2.5-litre DOHC V6 (204); 3.6-litre DOHC V6 (306)
- Transmissions. Six-speed automatic; eight-speed automatic (IS 350, RWD)
- Base price (incl. destination) $38,000

Fuel economy

As expected, fuel economy for the base IS 250 should remain virtually constant at 9.5 l/100 km in the city and 6.5 on the highway and 10.5/7.3 for the IS 350 (all take premium fuel).

Design

The latest IS has sharpened its demeanor. In front, the car exhibits a hunkered-down stance, aided by a more aggressive nose and what Lexus calls its "spindle" grille that sticks out from the crowd. Also visible is more defining side sculpting extending along the lower body plus an integrated rear deck spoiler.

Engine

If you're familiar with the previous IS drivetrains, you can skip the next sentence. The IS 250 keeps its 2.5-litre V6 with 204 horsepower and 185 pound-feet of torque, while the IS 350 continues with 306 horsepower and 277 pound-feet of torque emanating from a 3.5-litre V6. Both are carry overs.

The 2014 IS remains the class rebel of the Lexus fleet, which is great news for those who derive their driving kicks from compact luxury cars that are fleet of foot, strong of character and provide power to either the rear or all four wheels.

The main reason for the IS's existence is to bait BMW 3-series, Audi A4 and Mercedes-Benz C-Class fans into switching teams. Toyota's premium division has learned plenty from its previous two IS generations and now appears to be an even stronger contender with the new-for-2014 version.

The IS, with its 20 per cent stiffer platform, has grown nearly nine centimetres in length, with seven more centimetres between the front and rear wheels, while width and height increase only slightly. Rear-seat riders now benefit with a bit more leg and hip room, which was a drawback on the previous IS.

All passengers will appreciate the more modern-looking cabin that is neatly trimmed out with more centralized controls, touch-sensitive switches and a console-mounted cursor-type knob for selecting various infotainment choices.

The rear and all-wheel-drive IS 250 and all-wheel-drive 350 employ six-speed automatic transmissions. An eight-speed automatic is standard when the rear-wheel-drive IS 350 is selected. All-wheel-drive, which is a $3,800 option, splits the torque 50:50 (front/rear) in normal driving situations, but will transfer up to 70 per cent to the rear when wheel slippage is detected.

The IS has Drive Mode Select throttle and transmission programming, with ECO, NORMAL and SPORT S modes for rear-wheel-drive models, plus a SNOW mode for AWD-equipped cars. With an estimated starting price of about $38,000 for the 250 and $48,000 for the 350, including destination charges, the Lexus duo offers an array of standard equipment, but most buyers will likely opt for one or more of the option groups that upgrade the car to full-on luxury status. They include, among others, a navigation system with back-up camera, premium Mark Levinson-brand audio package, heated and cooled seats and a wood-trimmed interior.

The 2014 IS is truly more of a match for the competition. It also strengthens Lexus's position as a purveyor of vehicles with passion and prestige.

Licensed for fun

On long trips it can be difficult to keep the youngsters amused, especially when travelling without the benefit of video or electronic devices. The U.S.A. License Plate Game from Melissa & Doug toys is an easy, yet fun geography lesson: you record all of the plates that you spot along the highway by flipping over the miniature plate tiles featured for all 50 states (sorry, no Canadian provinces). The playing board measures 35 by 25 cm and the best part is that there are no loose parts to fall beneath the seats and there are no batteries to replace. It sells for $20 US and can be ordered from melissaanddoug.com.

Of all the different knives available from the Columbia River Knife & Tool Company, the Guppie has to be the most functional and would be the handiest to keep in your vehicle. Along with a five-centimetre stainless-steel blade, the Guppie 9070 functions as a light-emitting-diode (LED) flashlight, adjustable wrench (up to half an inch), bottle and can opener and includes two different sizes of detachable flat blade and phillips-head drivers. The Guppie's built-in clip also allows the user to attach it to their pants or shirt pocket and it doubles as a money clip. The Guppie sells for $45 US and can be purchased at crkt.com/guppie

What's in your garage?

Is that a jet fighter in your garage? It can be almost anything you want it to be when you choose a mural from style-your-garage.com. This Germany-based company specializes in dressing up boring, single or double-sized garage doors with a variety of images from the company's gallery. However you can also submit your own images to be used in the same fashion. Each one is made of "indestructible" material that attaches to wood or metal doors with self-adhesive Velcro fasteners and should take you about 60 minutes to put up. Prices start at $220 US for single doors and $375 for double doors. Visit at style-your-garage.com.

A free owners' manual

It can be annoying to misplace your owner's manual, or purchase a vehicle that's missing this document. Fortunately there's a good samaritan out there who can help out. He (or she) has made available downloadable copies of manuals for many makes and models, in some cases going back as far as the early 1990s (more than 2,000 in total). Included on the list are manufacturers like General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, Acura/Honda, Toyota and Volvo. Obviously that still leaves gaps in the collection, but with the assistance from members of the public the variety of manuals is growing daily. The best part of all is that you pay absolutely nothing for this service. Visit justgivemethedamnmanual.com

Over his illustrious five-decade career in the auto biz, successful automotive executive Bob Lutz has worked with a lot of famous bosses. From that vantage point he noticed that most of the really successful ones were also "mentally and emotionally askew."

In his new book, Icons and Idiots, Lutz profiles nine such bosses (and one teacher and one Marine drill sergeant), all of which have taught him major lessons in leadership. The title doesn't mean that some are idiots and some are icons. Rather that every strong leader is a bit of both.

"There's a good side, which gets the job done," says Lutz. "There's often a downside that makes them hard to understand or difficult to work for. It's precisely because they are impatient, stubborn, opinionated, unsatisfied and domineering that they are successful."

His advice to those of us currently dealing with such unbalanced bosses is to learn to take the good with the bad. Here are a few examples of what Lutz has learned:

From sadistic Marine Corps Staff Sgt. Donald Giusto:
"Learning to continue to function in the face of failure, betrayal, acute disappointment, all the while physically and mentally tired, perhaps without food, is what the Marine Corps expects from its members. What it demonstrated to me is that we are all capable when the chips are down, of doing far more than we think we can. Sgt. Giusto unlocked the hidden reservoirs of capability in all of us."

From Harold A. "Red" Poling, ultimate bean counter, and not a nice guy:
"Red taught me that the tough uncompromising, unfeeling, almost nasty approach to initial cost and investment estimates could produce meaningful saving ... The Poling approach served me well during my later tenure at Chrysler and my last tour at GM, although I was always at pains to leaven it just a bit with humour, engineering and marketing judgment." Lutz also noted to never forget that you can still learn stuff from bosses you can't stand.

From Ralph Mason, a cheerful but serious alcoholic, and product of a bygone era, when there was a lot of hard drinking in the auto industry:
"Ralph nevertheless focused on what was important and advanced the cause of GM and its shareholders." Lutz also said Mason often went home early to get plastered, but had a good team behind him, trusted them and didn't interfere.

From Rick Wagoner, the capable GM president that couldn't turn GM around: "A magnificent human being, Rick was simply too nice, too introspective and too thoughtful in many of his actions to see the company through the turbulence of 2008-09… Tolerant of mediocrity, ... it was painful to see Rick protect and support many officers who, to my eyes, personified the large corporate culture of 'look good, sound good, prepare well for meetings, and never disagree with the boss.'" But Lutz considers Wagoner the perfect "peacetime" CEO, and says Wagoner's moves to buy Daewoo and go aggressively into China are cornerstones of GM's current success.

Engineers worked for a year to tune the redesigned Kia Rondo's suspension. JIL MCINTOSH

Back it up like a Tonka truck and tune it like a guitar — the suspension, that is Driving force. Kia's engineers know it's a lengthy process to make sure their vehicles' suspension is just right

drive@metronews.ca

Vehicles have specific "rides," depending on what they are: a family sedan will ride smoother than a sports car's harsher suspension, for example, but its steering won't be as firm.

These characteristics are achieved through a procedure called suspension tuning. "The rubber bushings, shocks, springs, stabilizer bars and tires can all be tuned to reach a specific target," says Vu Banh, ride and handling senior engineer at the Hyundai-Kia America Technical Center in California. "Depending on what's desired, if it's ride comfort or sporty handling, you can adjust these parts to reach that goal."

It takes about a year to do the job, which begins when engineers receive the first prototype of a new model. "We start tuning and get a rough setting for that one," Banh says. "Then we get another vehicle that's closer to the production car, and we'll put those (prototype) settings in, fix any issues, make more adjustments and continue refining as much as we can."

Computers are used extensively in vehicle design, but they're not as useful in suspension tuning, because they can't accurately simulate rubber. Tuning is a painstaking process of making adjustments and then driving the car to see how it feels, over and over again.

How it's done depends on the part. Shock absorbers contain hydraulic oil, and if internal valves are adjusted to different oil flow, the shocks become firmer or softer. Engineers can use soft or hard rubber bushings, or different types of springs to achieve various results.

Even the tires become part of the process.

"If we come up with a new shock setting, for instance, we'll possibly (use) a new tire," Banh says. "Then we'll work around that, going back and forth with the shock tuning until it meets the target. There's always a compromise, because if you want sporty handling, your ride comfort degrades. We have to assign the best balance."

Many new cars now have electric power steering, which uses a motor in the steering column. Unlike hydraulic systems, which use pumps to regulate fluid flow, the motor can be tuned electronically. Engineers dial in the steering for more assist at lower speeds, such as when manoeuvring in parking lots, and less at higher speeds for easier control on the highway.

They also aim for good "on-centre feel," where the car stays straight without the need for constant steering wheel correction.

Vu Banh, ride and handling senior engineer at Hyundai-Kia America Technical Center. On what tuning different parts of a vehicle can achieve

To note

- Twitchy. Cars with extremely direct steering are called "twitchy," which can be fun in a sports car but is undesirable in a family sedan.
- Save cash. Electric power steering improves fuel economy and doesn't require petroleum-based fluid as hydraulic systems do.
- Wheels. Tires can radically alter a car's ride, depending on their size and construction.

Vehicular viewing at a cinema near you ...

Autoknow. Historically, it has been easy to turn something as exciting as auto racing into a theatrical disaster ... but thankfully there are the classics too

wheelbasmedia.com

Like buttered popcorn and red licorice, race cars and fiery crashes remain a reliable one-two punch for moving money and turnstiles at a theatre near you ... maybe now more than ever.

Speed, danger, cinematography — and often humour — keep racing movies a big draw, and top film producers working overtime to meet the demand.

In the 11 months from May of 2013 to March of 2014, at least five auto-racing movies are scheduled for release, featuring everything from an intense friendship and rivalry between drag racers in Snake and Mongoose, to animated fun with Snoop Lion and Samuel L. Jackson as character voices in Turbo.

Racing movies know no boundaries. Comedic films such as Talladega Nights: The Ballad of Ricky Bobby (2006), and even ones with a dash of romance such as Days of Thunder (1990), continue to gross millions in online and DVD sales and rentals.

Measured together, racing movies have combined to make more than $2 billion US since the silent picture Speedway was filmed at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and released in 1929.

So what gives? And why do so many of these racing flicks stand the test of time?

Andrew Hall of the blog Automobiles and American Life reports that a good film provides sensory overload and an edge-of-your seat experience through the racing, with some intrigue through the writing and acting.

"(Racing movies) are an important piece of cinema history because they are at the genesis of the action thriller," Hall writes. "These films define what the action thriller is in today's Hollywood."

Another addition to the wildly successful underground racing movie series.

Director Ron Howard on the set of Rush. ALL IMAGES WHEELBASE

Rush highlights a rash of racing movies hitting theatres in the coming months.

Set for release on Sept. 20, this docudrama directed by two-time Oscar winner Ron Howard examines the heated rivalry between Formula One drivers Niki Lauda and James Hunt. A story of perseverance, the movie centres on the historic 1976 championship when Lauda kept racing, even after losing his right ear and suffering severe burns to his face after a crash at the Nürburgring race track in Germany.

Early reviews from the lucky few to get a sneak peak are calling Rush one the brightest racing films of all time. In an interview with Car Magazine, director Howard said he treated the making of Rush similarly to how he approached Apollo 13, his epic space-survival drama from 1995.

"Rush gives a broad overview of racing in the '70s, but it's more than a racing movie," Howard said. "It's about the nature of rivalry. I think it will be very cinematic, very fresh for audiences."

At any age, racing stories of all kinds have captured the imagination of movie buffs and race fans for decades. But be warned, filmmakers: always guard against taking creative liberties because auto-racing enthusiasts make the most discerning film critics.

The ESPN TV movie 3: The Dale Earnhardt Story was harshly criticized by diehard race fans who noticed numerous production and technical errors. The best way to guard against any inaccuracies is to take reality out of it, and fiction is where you'll find many of the all-time great racing movies.

Le Mans (1971), starring Steve McQueen, is considered by many to be the best racing movie ever made. Winning (1969), starring Paul Newman, was a turnstile hit, as was Grand Prix (1966), starring James Garner.

A comedic look at auto racing has also provided many blockbusters with classics such as The Love Bug (1969), The Cannonball Run (1981), and Stroker Ace (1983).

But for the true auto-racing enthusiast, the real-life stories will always top the must-see list. In 2010, Senna — an independent film on the life and death of legendary F1 driver Ayrton Senna — was released to critical acclaim and eventually swept nearly every movie award internationally for best documentary.

Race cars and movie curtains don't necessarily seem like the perfect marriage, at least at first glance. But given a record of success, and revenues in the billions of dollars, another rash of racing films ready for release shouldn't surprise anyone. In fact, the surprise might be that they could actually be worth watching.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Create something wonderful today. This can be one of the most productive times of the year for you, so get serious and get busy working on something that makes your world, and the world at large, a better place.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Whatever problems you may have with a relationship, you won't work it out by trying to force the other person to conform to your way of thinking. Try seeing things from their point of view .

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
The Sun's link to Jupiter in your sign today will help you to express yourself freely. It will also help you to get over some kind of falling out you had with a loved one.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Focus on the realities of your everyday situation and avoid any and all forms of wishful thinking. Above all, don't let others' negativity blind you. Life is a garden of delights but too few people see it that way.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You will come out on top today, especially if you focus on things you are good at, things you really enjoy. You will enjoy them more if some people say you should not be doing them.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Moderation is a must today, especially if you are one of those Virgos who tends to get carried away when they find something they really enjoy.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
The Sun close to Jupiter in one of the best areas of your chart means you will have a thoroughly good day. Do a bit of travelling, even if it's only to the corner store and back.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Your taste for the good things in life could lead to you spend too much today but in the greater scheme of things, it's no big deal. Retail therapy could in fact be just what you need to cheer you up.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Jupiter, your ruler, links with the Sun in the partnership area of your chart today, making it easier for you to compromise with people you don't always see eye-to-eye with. Don't compromise too much though.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Don't limit the goods deeds you do to people you know. Help those you encounter in daily life too, even if they are total strangers. Your generosity will have a knock-on affect that touches so many lives.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Life is good and getting better by the hour, the day, the minute. Creatively and romantically you are in such a positive mood that you attract people and situations that bring thrills aplenty. Lucky you.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
At home and work, people will want to do things for you today, and if you are smart you will let them. You'll feel good about it, they'll feel good about it. SALLY BROMPTON
